The Boston Sculptors Gallery presents Dennis Svoronos: Calls for Connection, on view December 14, 2022 – January 29, 2023. In his most recent body of sculptural work, the artist confronts, laments and sheds light upon one of the most persistent remnants of the Covid-19 pandemic: our collective losses.

Loss is a hallmark of this disease—loss of security, income, sanity, relationships, and loss of life. In the wake of this emptiness and disconnectedness, Svoronos strives to unite, build, and celebrate the connections we do have; as well as encourage those yet to be. The artist's gestures manifest in collaborations with other artists, interactive sculptures involving multiple participants, additive installations requiring ongoing contributions from viewers, and intimate moments of connection between the viewer and the work itself. In these moments of connectivity and closeness, Svoronos incites ideas, feelings, and experiences that hope to fill the void left by what each of us has lost.

Calls for Connection is Svoronos' fourth solo exhibition at Boston Sculptors Gallery and runs concurrently with Andrew Zimmermann: Rugged Road.
